Who are we?

The Jugendfeuerwehr is the youth organisation of the voluntary fire service.

Regardless of descent, nationality and religion, boys and girls aged 8 to about 17, are active in the youth section of the local fire brigade. Sometimes, the youth sections of different fire services are grouped together.

The practical training in the youth fire service usually take place once a week. The young fire fighters are trained by specially qualified group instructors.

What happens there?

Of course, our main goal is to prepare the young persons in the duties of the five voluntary fire services. These include practical and theoretical training.

However, our boys and girls are not only taught how to use hosepipes, but also to give first aid.

What is more, there are a great number of activities, which are undertaken by our youths. Among them are:

- doing handicrafts
- hiking
- sightseeing
- camping
- environmental projects

- adventure
- fun & games
- performances, ...
